

LEVY ON SOFT DRINK STALLS TAX PROGRAM

Finance Committee Holds Up Action On House Passed Measure Until Next Week

MOVE IS A SURPRISE

Harrisburg, March 3—(P)—Last-ditch opposition to the state's soft drink tax today stalled, temporarily at least, Gov. James H. Duff's $42,000,000 tax program in the general assembly.

The Senate finance committee held up action on the House passed tax measures until next week pending examination of pleas of bottlers and others that the soda tax be dropped.

The surprise move came after the 15-member group, dominated by Republicans, discussed the tax problem for several hours behind closed doors. Previously they heard bottlers assert the levy was driving some out of business.

A sub-committee has been appointed for the purpose of going into greater detail the information that was presented, particularly on the soft drink tax, Chairman James A. Galtz (R-Allegheny) told reporters.

He insisted, however, that the move doesn't mean "anything might be killed" in the governor's tax program.

"We just want complete and detailed information," he explained. A lot of information we received today was very impressive and sufficiently serious to be given more consideration."

Sen. John H. Dent, the Democratic floor leader, concurred in the statement. Earlier, he urged the committee to drop the soft drink tax in favor of an increase in the state's inheritance taxes.

The hold-up on the tax measures came as Chairman Paul L. Wagner (R-Schuylkill) announced plans for a meeting Tuesday, March 8, of the Senate state government committee to consider the administration's authority building program.

Legislation to set up a General State Authority and Highway Authority to handle a $187,000,000 program in the next two years passed the House on Tuesday with resounding majorities. Only two votes were recorded against the measure.

The controversial local tax problem also came to the fore with the introduction of a Republican-sponsored measure to eliminate local taxes on natural resources, farm and manufactured products and on the levy on non-residents of communities levying them.

Claim Racketeering In Surplus Stocks

Philadelphia, March 3—(P)—Seventy-three persons—60 of them ex-GIs—are under Federal court indictment on charges of alleged racketeering in War Assets Administration surplus goods.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Leon H. Fox said all the men indicted yesterday were involved in the "industrial purchase of surplus trucks and cars resale at 'rock-bottom' prices. The trucks were obtained through preference certificates issued veterans immediately after the war, he said.

Among those indicted was Manuel Steinberg, of Camden, N. J., a truck and automobile dealer who was described as the sole owner of the Camden Truck Parts Co.

In the two months of December, 1946, and January, 1947, Steinberg was charged with acquiring 24 war surplus trucks and 23 trailers at a purchase price of $230,725 and reselling them at "enormous profits."

Cardinal Threatens To Dig Graves To Replace Strikers

BULLETIN

New York, March 3—(P)—Francis Cardinal Spellman led 195 seminarians and priests peacefully through picket lines today to bury dead at strike-bound Calvary cemetery.

The smiling cardinal, dressed in street clothes, sat in the front seat of one of three buses that took the group past the silent pickets into the cemetery—largest Roman Catholic burial ground in the metropolis. The priests and students from St. Joseph's Seminary in Yonkers, N. Y., immediately were divided into 10 groups of 10 men each and set to work to dig graves for about 600 bodies that have been left unburied in the seven-week strike. The digging proceeded slowly in the snow—enrusted, frozen ground. It was a raw, windy day.

The New York archbishop said he would "do anything the four New York, March 3—(P)—Francis Cardinal Spellman will lead priests and 100 seminary students to dig graves today at a Cathedral cemetery, replacing striking members of a union he says is "Communist-dominated."

The strike of grave diggers and other workers has left about 600 bodies unburied.

Easing of Installment Curbs Seen As A Boon To Business And Lift To Lag In Car Sales

Washington, March 3—(P)—Many lawmakers today welcomed as a boon to business a government order permitting smaller monthly installments on a list of items ranging from cook stoves to automobiles.

The Federal Reserve Board's action also was warmly greeted by the automobile industry, which saw in the move a possible lift to lagging car sales.

However, Edgar Kaiser, general manager of the Kaiser-Frazer Corp. said, "It is not enough," and a similar sentiment was expressed by Rep. Patman (D-Tex.), who has been demanding an extensive easing of curbs on credit buying.

Resignation Of Forrestal Is Predicted

Washington, March 3—(P)—President Truman is expected to accept today James V. Forrestal's long-pending resignation as secretary of defense and name Louis A. Johnson, West Virginia lawyer, to the post.

White House informants said the action probably will be announced at Mr. Truman's news conference at 4 p. m. An exchange of letters between the president and Forrestal has been prepared for release, they added.

Forrestal, the nation's first secretary of defense, is the last cabinet holdover from the Roosevelt administration. He was secretary of the Navy before he took the top defense job.

Johnson long has figured in speculation as Forrestal's successor. He is a former assistant secretary of war and served as chairman of the Democratic Finance committee in the 1948 presidential campaign.

Presidential associates disclosed during the campaign that Forrestal was expected to step down after the election. The only question was one of timing.

The president is known to have delayed action because of his objections to publicity given his plans.

He and Forrestal have discussed (Turn to Page Ten)

Ford Asks CIO Auto Workers For Early Talks On Contract

Detroit, March 3—(P)—The Ford Motor Co., commenting on economic conditions, asked the CIO United Auto Workers today for early informal contract talks.

Ford, in a letter to the union, indicated it questioned the advisability of the UAW's proposal for $100 monthly pensions for 106,000 Ford workers.

Pensions, Ford said, either must be paid for through a wage reduction or higher car prices.

Ford said, "One of sales and steady jobs."

Pensions are the No. 1 goal of the auto workers union in 1949 although a pay increase also will be sought.

Ford raised a question whether its workers would be willing to take a wage cut in order to finance pensions and said there was "only one other way"—higher car prices to customers.

"But we are convinced that too many of them would not stand for this," the company said.

The letter to the union was signed by John S. Bugas, Ford vice president in charge of industrial relations, and copies were sent to all employees represented by the UAW.

A union reply was not immediately available.

Ford asked the union for a meeting "to explore informally some of the basic factors that will affect the negotiations."

The Ford-UAW contract expires July 15. Under its 60-day reopening, negotiations could be expected to be instituted in mid-May.

Bugas, in his letter, also mentioned what he called the "declining" cost of living's effect on "real wages" and pointed to General Motors' current two cents an hour contractual wage cut.

Without going into detail, he said GM's cut has placed Ford at a $5,000,000 annual wage "handicap."

Lonely Hearts Pair Facing Trial In N. Y.

Minneapolis, N. Y., March 3—(P)—The District Attorney of Nassau County said today that Raymond M. Fernandez and his 200-pound girlfriend, Martha Beck, will be brought here from Michigan to face a "lonely hearts" murder charge.

Convicted of first degree murder in New York carries the death penalty.

District Attorney James N. Gehrig asked a bench warrant against the pair to speed their return.

In Michigan the pair are charged with two murders. Authorities say they have admitted a third in New York.

Hawaiian-born Fernandez, 34, and stout Mrs. Beck, 29, waived examination in a lower Michigan court.

Cain Charges Sen. Wallgren Is A Red

Washington, March 3—(P)—Senator Cain (R-Wash.) disclosed today he has written President Truman contending that Mon Wallgren has associated with Communists.

Wallgren, former governor of Washington state, is a close friend of Mr. Truman. The president has nominated him to be chairman of the National Resources Board.

Cain made public letters to the president and to John F. Steelman, a presidential aide. In his letter to Steelman, Cain expressed "hope that the president will come to understand that his appointee is not the man to protect America against war, or the man to win it if it comes."

In substance, that amounted to Cain's saying he hoped the president would withdraw the nomination.

RED MISSION ENCLOSED BY BARBED WIRE

New Move Made to Prevent Possibility of Food Being Smuggled Into Blockaded Comies

WATER APPEAL DENIED

Frankfurt, Germany, March 3—(P)—U. S. army engineers strung barbed wire entanglements around the blockaded Russian repatriation mission today, and set up floodlights.

The explanation was obscure. A military policeman said the new move was to prevent the possibility of food being smuggled in to the eight blockaded Russians, and to prevent them from leaving "on their own" without reporting to American authorities first.

The Americans want the Russians to leave—in fact, ordered them to go—and have offered transportation facilities to the border if the Russians leave voluntarily. But when asked for further explanation of the barbed wire and floodlights, the military policeman replied cryptically:

"There are a lot of trees on this estate and you never can tell what they might try."

The eight Russians who ignored the U. S. army's order to leave by March 1, watched the wire stringing operations curiously from windows of the three-story building. They showed no intention of leaving, although they are cut off from water, light, gas, telephone service and food from the outside. On the chance that water might leak through to the mission by faulty closed valves, the engineers even ordered the pipes saved in half.

A Russian visitor to the mission had relayed an appeal for water, which was denied. But this morning an English-speaking member of the blockaded mission reported through the military police guards that the mission spent a comfortable night and had a good breakfast. How this was accomplished without water, gas or electricity was not explained. A German cook, last of the servant staff, left the building this morning.

"During sunny spells this morning the Russians basked on the balcony of the year of the house."

American authorities ordered a street dug up in front of the headquarters of the besieged mission to make sure no water reached the men inside.

But when the front door opened at 8 a. m. (2 a. m. EST) and a Russian officer poked his head out to ask "Can we have a newspaper?" they got a paper.

Let Lt. Edward L. Covak, Duluth, Minn., in charge of the military police cordon around the mission house, said only Stars and Stripes, an English-language paper, was available.

There were no indications either side was backing down in the latest miniature war of nerves.

The blockade around the Russian mission was slapped on yesterday.

REP. GAVIN ON TOUR WITH CHIEF OF NAVY

Miami, Fla., March 3—(P)—Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan said the atomic bomb has not made navies obsolete.

He talked to reporters briefly during a stopover here en route to Washington. He flew from San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Sullivan was accompanied by Dan Kimball, assistant secretary of the navy for air, and Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.), William J. Green, Jr., (D-Pa.), Leon H. Gavin (R-Pa.), and Edward H. Jensen (R-Ill.).

Three hundred grave diggers have been on strike for seven weeks there and at a cemetery at Hawthorne, N. Y., also managed by the Cathedral trustees.

The strikers, members of the CIO United Cemetery Workers, are seeking a five-day week at the same $39.40 pay they now get for six days.

Cardinal Spellman said last night their parent union, the CIO Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers, is "Communist-dominated."

Joseph Manning, president of the striking local of cemetery workers, said the cardinal's charge was "an attempt to cover up two unsuccessful efforts to start a back-to-work movement."

Johnstown-Altoona Milk Price Is Cut

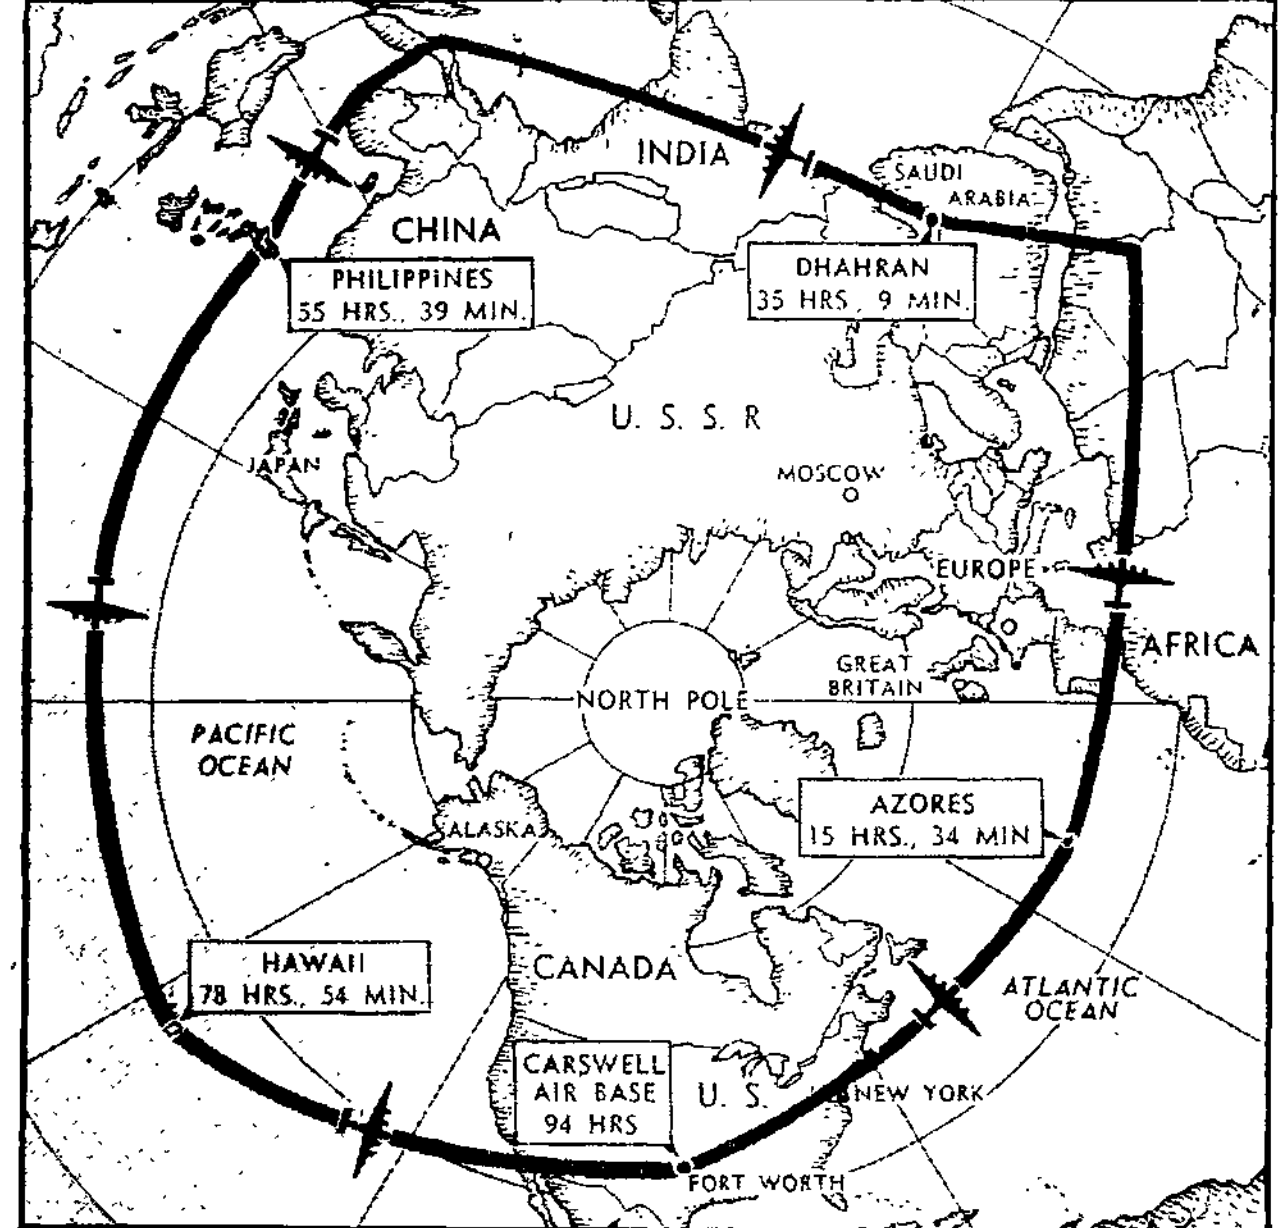

Harrisburg, March 3—(P)—The State Milk Control Commission today announced a cut of one and one-half cents a quart to 20 cents in the Johnstown-Altoona area, effective March 16.

Chairman H. N. Cobb said the commission acted after views of retailers and producers presented at a conference here yesterday.

The new order also reduced the producer price for class one milk from $5.80 to $5.30 a hundred pounds (46½ quarts), effective the same day.

Southerners Start Fourth Day Of Filibuster With New Confidence

Around-the-World in 94 Hours—Non-Stop

Map shows the route of the "Lucky Lady II," U. S. Air Force B-50 bomber. In making the first non-stop around-the-world flight in history, the flight began at Carswell Air Base, Fort Worth, Tex., at 11:21 a. m. (CST) last Saturday and ended there 94 hours later, after covering 23,452 miles—almost the distance of the earth's circumference at the equator. Time required to reach each base where the plane was refueled in mid-air is given with place name.

Round-The-World Flight Is Assigned Significant And Dramatic Place In Cold War

Washington, March 3—(P)—Diplomats today assigned the non-stop round-the-world flight of an American bomber a significant and highly dramatic place in the grand strategy of the cold war.

An important fact in terms of international politics is that the state department had opportunity to block the flight but did not do so. Two and a half years ago a somewhat similar project was vetoed by the diplomats.

Thus the changed attitude may be taken as a measure of the extent to which relations between Russia and the west have gone downhill.

The decline started at the peak of hopes for east-west cooperation in peacemaking. Its present low point is characterized by the belief of the western powers that military readiness to strike back is now an absolute essential of peace.

In this sense the B-50 trip which ended yesterday at Fort Worth provides a single dramatic instance. It shows what the United States and other western powers are trying to accomplish on a broader scale and in a different way through the proposed Atlantic security treaty.

Top American officials define the purpose of that treaty as being to confront any potential aggressor—by which they currently mean Russia—with such "overwhelming" force that he would not dare attack.

In the flight of the B-50 bomber the Soviets can now read unprecedented evidence of the range of American strategic air power. They may reason that no single one of their cities should ever come, would be safe.

Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, chief of the Strategic Air Command, was asked at Fort Worth whether the round-the-world "globe means" you can deliver an A-bomb anywhere in Russia.

He put his answer this way: "Let's say any place that would require an atom bomb."

Chairman Tydings (D-Md.) of the senate armed services committee commented solemnly: "This flight offers some measure of what another World War would mean to all peoples."

However, the Air Force was meticulous in lying out its flight plan for the B-50. It made sure that at no point did the route approach either Russia or Soviet-held areas.

The nearest the B-50 came to Russia was hundreds of miles to the south, when the bomber flew over the subcontinent of India.

KIDNAPING CHARGED

Pittsburgh, March 3—(P)—Joseph Magliola, 22, of Ellwood City was held today under bond of $10,000 on a charge of kidnaping two teen-age girls and taking them forcibly across a state line.

He was ordered held for trial yesterday after arraignment before a U. S. commissioner.

RAILROADER DIES

Erie, March 3—(P)—Funeral services will be held Friday for Thomas Dundon, retired New York Central Railroad employee. Dundon died Tuesday of a heart attack.

Soldiers Bring Bubble Gum to the Eskimos

Anchorage, Alaska, March 3—(P)—It's boom and bust beyond the Arctic circle.

The Eskimos are chewing bubble gum.

It was introduced, Arctic white residents think, by soldiers stationed at Cape Spencer and other northern outposts. Some of the soldiers may have gone, but the bubble gum stuck.

Among the more gift masochists are the older women. They used to chew tobacco. Then ordinary chewing gum. Now it's bubble gum.

It is a common sight, outposts residents say, to see a husky Eskimo racing across the Arctic wilderness behind his dog team, his sled and a mighty balloon of bubble gum.

Widowed Mother and Nine Of Her Tots Lose Lives In Fire

Muskegon, Mich., March 3—(P)—A widowed mother, at least nine of her children and a roomer were burned to death today when a fire destroyed their flimsy frame home.

The flames, starting when an oil stove exploded, swept through the home of Mrs. Maude Clover at Lakewood, a little resort community 12 miles north of here.

The charred bodies of 46-year-old Mrs. Clover and nine children, ranging in age from 3 to 15 years, were found from the ruins of the roomer, identified as August Tasky, also perished.

Deputy sheriffs said in addition three more Clover children, may have died.

One badly burned survivor was brought to Mercy Hospital in Muskegon.

In critical condition and almost incoherent, 17-year-old Howard Clover said the flames leaped out of the stove at about 8 a. m. when the widow and her family were preparing breakfast. Most of the children were sleeping at the time.

Within a few moments the wooden house, once used only as a summer residence, was all aflame.

Young Clover said he stumbled to a window and pulled his 21-year-old brother, Ward, out with him. Vutury Harvey of Montague, a local fireman, said the two youths "were like human torches."

GOP LEADERS ADOPT HANDS OFF POLICY

So Far But Six Democrats Have Taken Floor For First Round Warm-up Speeches

SEN. LONG MAKES HIT

Washington, March 3—(P)—Southern senators armed with oratory launched the fourth day of their historic filibuster today with new confidence.

Senate Republican leaders adopted a hands off policy, conceding that they, like the Democrats, were split on the issue.

And at least one Republican, Senator Langer of North Dakota, sided openly with the Dixie lawmakers who are trying to kill an administration effort to curb the filibuster with a rules change.

Further, Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D-Miss.) reversed an earlier plan to offer a test petition on debate elimination today. He said he might be accused of choking off the talkathon too early.

So far only six of the southern Democrats have taken the floor for first round warm-up speeches. One of the six seemed to step boldly from the dusty pages of Senate history—Senator Russell Long (D-La.), son of Senator Huey Long who made some of the most spectacular filibusters of them all.

Thirty-year-old Senator Long, youngest senator in today's Congress, spoke only 35 minutes, but he is preparing material for a 24-hour speech if that proves necessary.

And yesterday's talk, although brief, was praised by colleagues who crowded around him later to congratulate him.

But before the filibuster resumed today, several Senate committees studied some of the major bills before them. They took up the vital rent control program.

The administration has asked an extension of present rent control, plus new powers. The Senate banking subcommittee called Housing Expediter Tighe Woods to explain the administration's stand. Woods already has appeared before the House Banking committee.

The nomination of Alon Wallgren, former Washington state governor, for chairman of the National Resources Board, was studied behind closed doors by the Senate Armed Services committee.

Wallgren was appointed by his close friend, Mr. Truman, but Senator Cain (R-Wash.) is fighting continued opposition.

Some time today the foreign aid program may be decided on by the (Turn to Page Ten)

Inquiry Into Local Taxes Is Advocated

Harrisburg, March 3—(P)—An intensive investigation of local and state taxes was urged today in the General Assembly.

Three western Pennsylvania senators were behind a bill which advocated the establishment of a nine member state-local relations committee to make the study.

The group would be empowered to study possible overlapping of state and local taxes. It also would make recommendations to the General Assembly for modernizing and streamlining the commonwealth's local and state taxing practices.

The committee, to be named by the governor, would serve without pay. It would receive, however, an appropriation of $100,000 to cover administrative costs.

Sponsoring the measure were Sens. Elmer Holland (D-Allegheny), John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland), and James Galtz (R-Allegheny).

PREACHER DIES

Greensburg, March 3—(P)—The Rev. William Arter Zundel, Lutheran minister for more than 40 years, died yesterday at his home near Greensburg. He was 71.

A member of a pioneer Westmoreland county family, he served parishes in Knox, Braddock, Freedom, New Castle, Derry, West Newton and Trauger.

Moose Lodge To Mark 40th Anniversary With Celebration

Warren Lodge of Moose No. 108, organized in 1909, will mark its 40th anniversary with a gala two-day celebration on Saturday and Sunday, March 19 and 20.

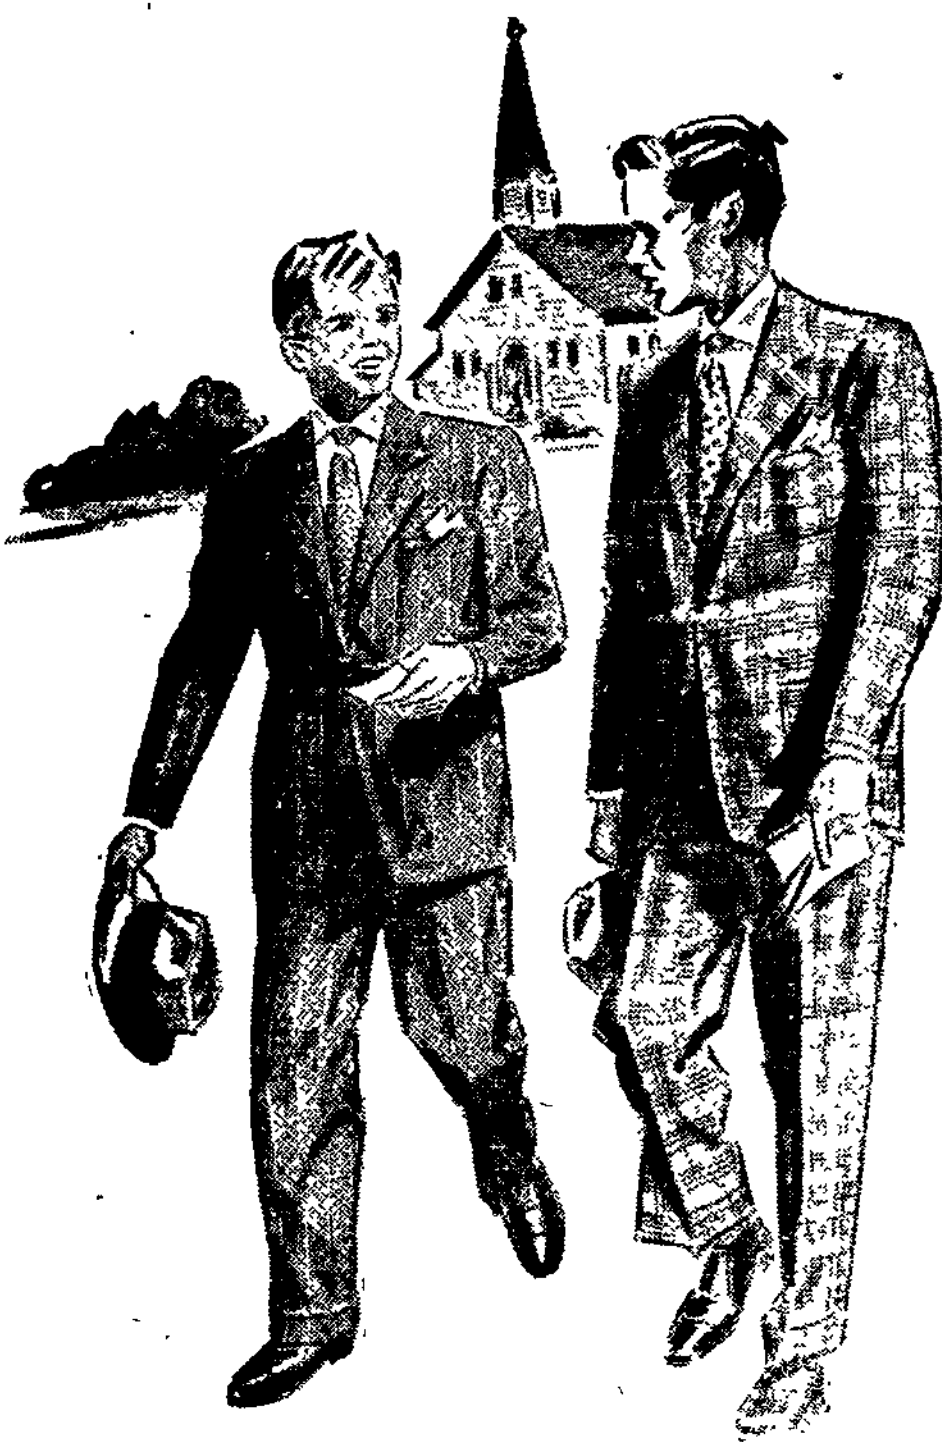

Highlights of the event will be a degree team competition in which 10 teams will vie for the championship of District 1. The competition is slated for Saturday, while on Sunday, an anniversary class of candidates will be initiated into the order.

Guests of the Warren lodge for the occasion will be Past Supreme Governor J. Jack Stoehr, of Pittsburgh, who will make the principal address.

Lunch will be served following Sunday's meeting, and dancing will be enjoyed during the evening.

There were 200 members in the charter class for the local lodge and since that time the roster has steadily increased until now the lodge has more than 1000 members.

Also attesting to the fine record of the organization is the fact that the lodge owns its own club room, has no outstanding financial obligations, and has assets totaling near $200,000.

Chapter 19
RIVERS beckoned to de Villivrac.
"Will you be good enough to pass the word to the ladies that I would appreciate their presence here at their early convenience?" he requested, and hid a fleeting grin.
They appeared presently, arm in arm. Irene's glance fixed on the French ship, and Rivers saw that she understood.
"Trouble?" she asked.
"Hardly that," Rivers said. "A misunderstanding, which is by way of being corrected. Though they emphasize their threats with a shore battery. Would you like to take a look?"
He handed her the glass. Irene gave an exclamation.
"Why, there—there is Dikkon," she said, and color mounted in her cheeks. The boat had already reached the shore.
"Wave to him," Rivers suggested.
Irene removed the glass from her eye to frown for a moment, then obeyed. She laughed delightedly.
"He sees me!" she cried. "He's waving back!"
"Naturally," Rivers agreed. "He's glad to see you."
The boat was now pulling furiously back to the ship, as though it were a matter of life and death. Which, if he knew Dikkon, it had probably been impressed upon the Frenchmen that it was.
Rivers waited a few moments, then gave the order to proceed past the silent shore battery, on and upstream—on to free territory.
They dropped anchor in late afternoon, still some distance out in the river. As dusk came down, they spied a small craft heading their way. It was a pirogue, paddled by one man, who made it dance over the water with expert ease.
He made it fast and came on board, climbing with the easy grace of a squirrel. He was, by his looks, a Cajun—with brilliant black eyes above a luxuriant beard. His dialect was a strange patois.
"A word with your captain, if I may," he said with a smile. "I bring him news."
"I am the captain," Rivers said. "What do you want?"
"A word with you, M'sieu—for your ears alone."
Rivers led the way to his cabin. Once the door was closed, his visitor turned with a laugh.
"These whiskers, they itch most infernally," he said, and wrenched them off, to reveal the blandly smiling face of Don Fernando!
Rivers eyed him, more surprised than he cared to confess. The disguise, with a stain of berry juice, was excellent.
"You are a bold man, Don Fernando, to come here in such a fashion," he commented.
"Bold?" Don Fernando repeated. "Assuredly, to trust myself to so cranky a craft. But how do you mean? As one friend to another, I think I have done excellently."
He looked about, smiling broadly.
"I see that Donna Dolores is with you, and even my sister, looking more bewitching than ever—though she eyed me as one in need of a bath! With such company, it must be most interesting, eh?"
"I find it so," Rivers agreed dryly.
Don Fernando's voice took on a serious tone.
"But you surprise me," he said. "I expected you to remain in New Orleans, to hold the public eye."
"You may have noticed that de Villivrac is serving in place of Martinez?" Rivers replied caustically.
"No, I had not noticed. Is that significant?"
"I found it so, when Martinez tried to murder me."

"To murder you? Murder? The mutinous dog!"
"Was it mutiny?" Rivers queried softly. "He knew that I was not you. And he assured some of the crew that he was acting at your orders, Don Fernando."
"Ah! Now I begin to perceive your meaning. But I assure you, it was not at my orders. Are we not agreed to work together, for our mutual profit?"
"Are we? Only last evening, I was being entertained in your stead, at the house of the Montforts."
"But, of course! I am much interested in the details of that. Though I see, as I had counted on, that you were able to uphold the Gonzales tradition. Else you would not be here."
Rivers eyed him in amazement, half believing against his better judgment.
"You fought with Barbara, I suppose?" Don Fernando asked.
"And gave him a taste of steel."
"Ah, well, that is excellent, considering that he is a swordsman of note. But as to this affair of Martinez, now—tell me what happened?"
"I was returning to the Royal when he took a shot at me—in the back. Afterward I heard him assuring his men that I was dead, and at your orders. He was so convincing that they now believe me to really be you."
"So that is it," Don Fernando fingered his chin, scowling. "My friend, let me ask you. Would he be such a fool as to come here, alone, if I had been guilty of such a thing?"
"If you expected to find Martinez in command, you might."
"That is a point," Don Fernando conceded. "But consider. I saw you, on the deck, long before I drew near. I could easily have turned about in the dark, had I been troubled with an uneasy conscience."

Chapter 20
RIVERS found himself believing Don Fernando who seated himself on the edge of a table.
"But out of the bad there is some good. My judgment has been proven, that you are well able to handle the part, as though you were myself. Together we are an unbeatable team. Which is well, for there is bigger work ahead. But now I must be interested to hear what befell at the Montforts."
Rivers told him. Don Fernando nodded approvingly.
"And so Irene and Dikkon like each other? Well, it is not surprising. And have I not done you an excellent turn, and the same for Donna Dolores? I assure you that I tried to act for the best. Long ago, in Spain, when we were on our wedding, at some future date, a matter on which we had nothing to say. I had supposed that it was long forgotten. Imagine my consternation to find that she had journeyed from Spain, expecting to marry me? What was I to do?"
"But did it ever occur to you that you might marry her?"
"But how? With the fair Maria thinking that she had first claim on me? I am I hope, not wholly a villain. And without love—" he shrugged, changed the subject.
"But I must be returning to my own ship. And so to business. At the edge of the river, you see a solid line of trees, but one breaks the skyline like a giant? There is a waterway there, which winds back inland, the land so wooded on either side that, if a ship follows the course, it must be shown. Usually there is enough of a breeze to move a ship along."

Business Census To Be Taken This Year

A census of business for the year 1948 is to be conducted in 1949 in accordance with the requirements of the act of June 19, 1948 Public Law 671. The census will be conducted in the continental United States and in the territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and will cover the distribution trades—retail trade, wholesale trade—and selected service trades. The above act also provides for subsequent business censuses at five-year intervals, and, beginning in 1953, for censuses of business and manufacturers to be taken covering the same years.
First preliminary results from the census relating to selected cities and other geographic areas and to special subjects will begin to be released in the latter part of 1949. Information will continue to be released during the year 1950. Final census, volumes summarizing the special area and trade reports previously released, will become available early in 1951.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
New York—(AP)—Want to be your own expert? Want to decide for yourself if we're heading into a recession—and, if so, how much of one?
Many businessmen say we are—a railroad man today uses the uglier word, "depression." Many government men say we're just getting our second wind for another sprint ahead. They can't both be right.
Presumably all these experts draw their conclusions from the same set of facts—the very things that may be puzzling you: Rising unemployment and declining retail sales, on the one hand; record national income and capacity production in many heavy industries, on the other.
Here's how the business balance sheet looks today—now it compared with the booming days of 1948—and, since you'll want it in perspective, how it stacks up against the more normal days of 1939. Look it over and see what you think it foretells.
Unemployment: Layoffs, many seasonal and all well-publicized, have sent the jobless total to around three million, up a million since Christmas. But back in 1939 nearly 9½ million were looking for work. And 59 million were looking for jobs at the start of 1948—16 million more than in 1939.
Retail sales: Currently running about $100 million a month below this time last year. Total sales in 1948 were just under $130 billion; in 1939 they were $12 billion.
Business failures: There were 180 reported last week, almost twice as many as a year ago, three times as many as two years ago. In the comparable week of 1939 there were 267.
Expansion and construction: Industry added nearly $19 billion to its plant last year, three times the amount it spent in 1939. For 1949 you have a wide choice of estimates. Experts say industry plans to spend a billion more than last year; other experts say it plans 8 per cent less.
Housing: The National Association of Home Builders sees one million new homes this year, some contractors think 750,000 a better guess. The government says some three million persons are still doubled up with others in existing homes. But empty and unsold new houses are reported in many cities—possibly priced out of the market.
Income and savings: Americans, with $192 billion of disposable income in 1948, socked away $14.9 billion, or 7.9 per cent. In 1939 they had $70 billion and saved 3 per cent, or $2.1 billion.
Their holdings of U. S. Savings bonds stood at a record high of $55 billion in January. Rarely have Americans as a whole had more put aside for a rainy day. But relief rolls are rising in some sections as unemployment and high prices take their toll of nest eggs.
Production: Industrial output is currently behind a year ago, but more than 130 per cent of the 1935-39 average.
But auto production so far this year is ahead of last, and may break the 1929 record.

One alarm in the monthly fire report of Meadville's Fire Chief Charles D. Smalenberg will not list "number of feet of hose laid," since Assistant Chief Fred Carman put out a Saturday night blaze by using a bathroom drinking cup and water from a washbowl faucet. WORLD-CIRCLING TRIPS

Nelly Bly should see the way they go around the world now!

She was the traveler who started off globe-circling speed dashes back in 1899. It took her 72 days, six hours and 11 minutes by steamship and train.

But she made much better time, at that, than the first round-world trip by planes.

On April 6, 1924, four Army planes took off from Seattle, headed westward. By short jumps and long waits for weather, supplies and such, they hopped across the Aleutians, down through India, up to England back to the United States. Only two of the original planes finished the flight. It took 175 days, of which 14 days and 15 hours was actual flying time.

The idea of refueling in flight came soon after World War I. And Army fliers were among the first to try it. On August 27-28, a wartime DeHaviland bomber kept aloft for 37½ days, refueling from another plane of the same type.

In 1929, the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin made the globe-encircling trip. Her time was 20 days and four hours from Friedrichshafen to Friedrichshafen, the distance 21,700 miles.

The late Wiley Post made two trips. In 1931, with Harold Gatty as navigator, he flew a northern route of 15,474 miles in eight days, 15 hours, 51 minutes. In 1933, flying alone, he covered roughly the same route and distance in seven days, 18 hours, 49½ minutes.

Howard Hughes, airplane designer and former Hollywood producer, flew around by way of Russia, 14,824 miles, in three days, 19 hours, 8 minutes, 10 seconds in 1938.

In 1947, William Odom, with Milton Reynolds, the owner, flew a converted Air Force medium bomber over a 30,000 mile route in elapsed time of 78 hours, 55 minutes, 12 seconds.

Between Nelly Bly's time and today there were many world-circling trips made by a variety of means, but until this week none was non-stop.

In 1519-1522 the ship Vittoria of Ferdinand Magellan's expedition made the first circumnavigation of the world. It took about 1,000 days.

NEW BIBLE

The year 1848, if all goes well, may be a notable landmark in American printing. A magnificent new Bible, expected to rank with the finest ever printed, will be issued by the World Publishing Company of Cleveland. The printing is designed by Bruce Rogers, a native of Indiana who now lives in Connecticut and who ranks with the all time great in his profession. The Bible will be a large-size book, like those on the reading desks of many churches, and will be too costly for the purse of the average man.

Unless unforeseen delays crop up, such as the continuance of Rogers' recent severe illness, lovers of fine printing might date future books in this way, "This book was printed so many years after the great Bruce Rogers Bible."

Among the seasonal sports are basketball, bowling, hockey and those who are already stepping out in new spring clothes.

THE BUNDLE OF LIFE

I Samuel 25:29 "Thy soul shall be bound in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God." "Bound in the bundle of life." That is a striking phrase. It is one that keeps ringing itself over and over again in the soul. It is well to recall the differences between the use of bundles in our day and that day. When one moves from one place to another now, he puts into bundles only very bulky material or odds and ends of no great value. In the days of the text, however, the choice valuables of the family would be tied up in a bundle and kept near at hand for safety and personally carried to the new home.

"Thy soul shall be bound in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God." That is a word of encouragement. You are not alone. God is with you. If you are fighting for the right and against evil God fights by your side. This word does not promise immunity from struggle and defeat. It does assure us that defeat need never be final.

Our word is also a call to life. Life consists in being bound in the bundle of life with God. It can be gained in no other way. We are fragments of a greater whole and can find and fulfill ourselves, as individuals and nations, by recognizing that fact and allowing ourselves to be bound in the bundle of life with God.

"Tell me on what terms I can live," a patient said to his physician. There is only one answer. "He who has the Son has life." To have the Son is to be willing to have Him, to surrender self to Him, to forget self into a soul, to be "bound in the bundle of life with God."

Sixty-seven years ago, residents of Oil City will doubtless be surprised to learn, "The Complanter Indiana threatened to wage a legal contest for possession of property on which Oil City now stands." At least that's what an item in the Warren Ledger of January 13, 1882, says. According to the article: "The Indians, descendants of the great Chief Cornplanter, entertain the idea that there is some crookedness in the transfer of the property from the red men to their white brethren. Jonathan Pierce, the present chief of the Complanter, was in Oil City at the office of the city attorney. He states that he has secured counsel, and that unless some settlement can be effected he will proceed to contest his claim. It is pretty well known that the descendants of (Turn to Page Five)

LaFollette Rift in Germany Is Example of Occupation Trends

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Ex-Congressman Charles M. LaFollette of Indiana recently resigned after a year's service as "Land Director" or governor of Wuertemberg-Baden, Germany, under Military Gov. Gen. Lucius D. Clay. There has been some mystery about why LaFollette came home, which can now be partially cleared up.

Last Oct. 28, which was a Thursday, German unions in Stuttgart scheduled a mass meeting protest against high prices in German stores. The rally was held in the Schloss Platz, traditional square where the citizens for many years past have addressed petitions to their rulers.

About 4 o'clock the crowd began to go home. But one group of about 25 went down a main street towards the railroad station and stopped in front of a German store notably higher priced than others. Somebody threw a brick through the window. A crowd began to gather. German police moved in, threatening with clubs though not using them, trying to disperse the crowd and move it on.

A LITTLE later an American passenger car driven by a man with two women military government employees, instead of going around the demonstration, tried to go through. When the driver got to the end of the block, he said the Germans had thrown bricks at his car.

Half obstructing the exit from this street onto the railroad station square were two American jeeps which had brought an MP captain, a sergeant and six privates to the scene. When the driver told the MP captain that his car had been threatened, the MP's moved up the street against the crowd, now grown to 2000 or 3000.

When the German police saw the MP's, they withdrew. In the melee that followed, one of the Americans had his coat slashed and two others were cut on the wrists.

Next day—Friday—there was a regular meeting of the Land Directors with General Clay in Heidelberg. General Clay had transcripts of the speeches made in Stuttgart. He said they were inflammatory. Also, three of his men had been injured. He demanded that LaFollette order a 9 o'clock curfew and ban all public meetings in Stuttgart. LaFollette argued strenuously that this would be a mistake, but General Clay insisted.

BECAUSE the orders were issued on a Saturday, the Stuttgarters had the week-end in which to cool off, and there was no further trouble. The curfew stayed on for eight days, then was withdrawn. But this incident, together with earlier curbs on the people which he had been ordered to impose, caused LaFollette to decide to come home when his contract ended in December, 1948.

It would take a superhuman judge to decide whether Clay or LaFollette was right in this case. For an understanding of LaFollette's motives, it is necessary to go back over his record. He was elected congressman from Evansville, Ind., as a Republican, but he is about as liberal as Republicans ever come. He tried for the Republican nomination for the Senate in 1946 against Sen. William Jenner, and was overwhelmingly rejected by the Indiana Republican convention.

Then he went to Germany as a prosecutor of Nazi justice officials before the Nuremberg war crimes tribunal. In this experience, LaFollette found that the defendants invariably claimed they were not Nazis, but that they had held office under the Nazis in order to soften their rulers' excesses. There came a time, however, when everyone of these German officials saw that he could do nothing to stop Nazi judicial processes from becoming the mere tool of totalitarian government. But not one of these German officials ever resigned in protest. To the prosecutor, this proved that their alleged defense was a sham.

old Complanter claim 300 acres of land where Oil City now stands. Whether they have any title to it remains to be seen. They have been there examining the records for some time back, and seem confident in regard to their case. According to the story, their claim dates back to 1791. In that year a grant of land on which Oil City now stands was made by the commonwealth to Complanter. In 1819 Complanter made a deed of this land to Wm. Kinnear and Wm. Connolly. The validity of this deed is what they seek to attack. The deed was signed by Complanter, personally, his wife not signing. This, they claim, gives her the right of dower. Again, they claim the grant was in such shape that Complanter could not dispose of it. In other words, it was given to him in trust for his tribe, and he had no right or authority to dispose of it. The nature of the grant remains to be determined, but if it be as they claim they have, as a tribe, an unquestionable title, according to good legal opinion. They talk of moving about one hundred wigwags down and settling in Oil City. They will then let the city sue them out of possession. It would make lively times in the city, no doubt.

This and That: According to Merle Jordan, government observer here, the highest temperature during February was 62 on the 19th, and the lowest was minus two on the third. The average high temperature for the 28 days was 46, which sets some kind of a record for February in this area. . . . Wonder what the driver in charge of a public utilities car thought the other morning when he discovered that he had parked it all night on the south approach of the bridge with the lights burning? . . . We're in accord with sentiments expressed on a postcard received from Newsboy Brindis, which says: "Before my moniker is in the obituary column I would like to see Warren have a proper place to teach and train enthusiasts of boxing. The YMCA does not even have a ring. Warren has many up and coming youngsters who like the art of boxing and with the help of individuals, clubs, associations that Warren has at present, boxing should be encouraged. Remember, great champions in any sport hailed from small towns, then went to 'big cities'. Proper instructors are necessary for good boxers. It is impossible to be self taught. I shifted to Buffalo too late." . . . Before the coming of the automobile, says a Jamestown writer, walking was a popular sport and there was genuine competition for the circuit of Chautauque Lake. Back in 1879 John Haley made a wager that he could walk from Warren, Pa., and back in 11 hours, a distance of some 42 miles. He did the trick with 39 minutes to spare. . . . Over in McKean county, Otto township has completed plans for construction of a ten and one-half acre community recreation park which, when completed, will be equipped to handle the needs of dozens of sports day or night and will rank as one of the most spacious installations of this type in the area. Most of the work on the project will be done by enthusiastic volunteers. Floodlights will give Otto township a new position in sports. It will make possible night football games and eventually mean night football for the community. As Johnny Nelson says: "Floodlights of course have come to be standard equipment in American sports. Once considered a fad in minor league baseball, night games now actually pump the very life blood into the sport. Take away the lights and you would eliminate more than half of the some 56 minor leagues that will operate in the nation this season. It's somewhat the same throughout football, softball and all the others. Otto township is getting ready to join the night game." . . . And speaking of floodlights, there are many sports lovers in Warren of the firm conviction that one of the first and most important installations at the new War Memorial Field after the baseball diamond is completed, should be lights to make possible athletic events at night.

The new India continues to pursue her destiny with seven league strides.

The latest of many striking indications of her determination to modernize her way of life is the introduction of a bill which would revolutionize the status of Indian women. This measure would make sweeping changes in ancient customs of the Hindu religion. For instance, plural marriage would be abolished, and women would be allowed the privilege of obtaining divorces.

It is interesting to find Law Minister B. R. Ambedkar sponsoring this measure. Dr. Ambedkar, whom I visited in his New Delhi home on my last trip to India, was born into that outcast class known as the "untouchables," and has spent his life championing their cause. He has a deep feeling for any class of society which is deprived of its rights.

As was to be expected, the bill has run into a storm of opposition in parliament. The chief protest comes from orthodox Hindus and is mainly on religious grounds.

So we shouldn't assume that the bill will pass. However, we may take it as an encouraging sign of the times.

Whether the measure is adopted, the fair sex of India is coming into its own, as is clearly indicated by the fact there are women members of the Indian legislature and of the Pakistan legislature. Prime Minister Nehru's sister, Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, is ambassador to Russia and also is India's chief representative at the United Nations.

That's a great change from what I found on my first visit to India more than thirty years ago. The spirit of progress was in the air, but it was largely a man's world. Except for the lowest class, women as a whole were kept in purdah. That is, they were secluded from the company of men not members of their own family and were closely veiled in public.

I encountered a particularly interesting example of such seclusion when I was the guest of the late Maharajah of Bikanir, one of the greatest of the ruling princes. He was liberal and progressive, but his maharani lived in strict seclusion.

The prince was deeply in love with his princess and among the things he had done for her happiness was build a beautiful garden close to the palace. In this garden was a fine tennis court, and he used to play tennis with her most days.

But that garden was surrounded by a high wall, so that none could see into the grounds. And when the maharani went with her ladies-in-waiting from the palace to the garden, some 25 yards away, they proceeded by a carefully curtained automobile. They reached the car through a canopy which was out up between the palace door and the automobile. Still, that was custom, and nobody seemed to question it.

High School Dramatic Club Plans An Evening Of Plays

The Evening of Plays of the Warren High School Dramatic Club in the high school auditorium on Thursday, March 10, will take an audience to an old Mexican village with its quaint customs, the first of the plays, "Sunday Osts Five Pesos" by Josephine High.

Leslie Israel and Raymond Nero play the parts of Bert and Fidel, the lovers whose misunderstandings become greater through the efforts of Salome and one, two of Bert's close friends, played by Barbara Whipple. Celestina, portrayed by JoAnn Smith, the woman in the plot whose fighting with Fidel causes the mix-up.

Student directors of the play are Mary Louise Anderson and Nancy Lee Plummer.

Taking part in the second play, "It's So Complex" by Mildred Hark and Noel McQueen, are Jack Brennan as Tommie, a younger brother with a food complex; Ann Johnson as the maid, Bertha, with a dirt complex; George Gindler as Dan, the teen-age psychologist and a psychoanalyst; and Carol Kottmaier and Roger Parfitt as Ethel and John Andrews, the bewildered parents.

Patty Brown and Emma Lou Plummer are the student directors.

Directing the exciting mystery of "A Night at an Inn" by Lord Dunsany are Carolyn Cowden and Collette Mangus. In this play the three merchants who have stolen a ruby from the eye of an idol are Gordon Odmark as William Jones (Bill), Lewis McCollough as Albert Thomas, and Don Wood as Jacob Smith (Sniggers). Their leader, A. E. Scott-Fortescue (The Toft) is portrayed by James Johnson. Nick Mangus plays the part of Klesh. The three priests, sent by the idol to recover its eye, are Bruce Forsgren, Neil DeStefano, and Charles Hutchings.

In ratio to population, there was one divorce for each 540 persons in Warren county and one for each 1930 in Forest county. In Erie county, the ratio was one to 4005 of population; in Crawford county one to each 430 of population; and in McKean county one to each 492. Venango was slightly lower than Warren county with one divorce to each 546 of population.

W P L REPORTING

With the increasing interest in Memorial Books for the library, maybe it would be a good idea to review just how the plan works. It is no exaggeration to call this plan an important function, allowing the library to purchase essential and timely books during this particular period when both the cost of books and the number of them are zooming upward. It is a good thing, too, to have the library public serve as a consultant occasionally in the purchase of books. For those who are now saying to themselves, "All right, all right! But how does the plan work?", here is the routine. A person wishing to place a memorial book calls the library and consults with the librarian as to the cost and the type or subject of the book.

The names of the person to be memorialized, the family and the donor, as well as all necessary addresses, are noted carefully. If the patron wants to have a sympathy card sent, this will be done immediately, stating that a book is being placed in memory of a certain person by the donor. After the book actually arrives from the publisher, the library sends a notice to the family of the memorialized person, giving again the name of the donor, and including the name of the book as well. At that time, an acknowledgement is sent to the donor, too. Sometimes a book may not arrive as soon as expected or it may not be available and a new selection will have to be made. For this reason, there can be no promise made as to just when the announcement of the name of the book can be sent. However, it usually takes no more than two weeks from the date of the original sympathy card or request for the book until the book is received at the library.

Continuing the list of recent memorial books, the following are now available for circulation: For Fred W. Sears—Crumbine, Frontier doctor; Crane, Farm labor saviors; Judkins, Principles of Dairying.

For William Paris—Rostow, National Policy for the Oil Industry. For Mrs. Lillian Hunter—Hunter, Lillian A., Around the World Cruise on the Samaria.

For Mrs. J. A. Johnson—Bromfield, Malabar Farm; Federal Writers Project, Delaware; Federal Writers Project, New Jersey; Finn, Art of the Choral Conductor; Newschultz, Job For Every Woman.

For Joann Finley—Smith, Book of Canadian Poetry; Cain, Choral Music and Its Practice. For Mrs. Stella Crosby—Chamberlain, Open House in New England.

For Martin W. Carlson—MacDonald, Company Commander.

For Dr. E. S. Africa—Deutsch, Shame of the States; Bishop, Champlain; The Life of Fortitude, Schmitt; Fighting Indians of the West; Villiers, Set of the Sails; Price, Textbook of the Practice of Medicine; Muir, Yosemite and the Sierra Nevada.

Felong - Anderson Wedding Saturday in St. Joseph's

St. Joseph's church was the scene of a pretty mid-winter wedding at 10 a. m. Saturday, February 26, when Ruth Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Anderson, 3 Henry street, became the bride of John James Felong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Felong, of Angola, N. Y.

The vows were taken before an altar decorated with gladioli and snapdragons against a background of ferns and palms. Traditional wedding selections were played by the church organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractively gowned in white satin, styled with sweetheart neckline. Her veil fell fingertip length from a braided headband of pearls and she carried a white handkerchief which was a gift from her grandmother. The prayer book which she carried was topped with gardenias and showered with streamers and Stephanotis blossoms.

Attending her as matron of honor was Mrs. Dorothy Zabawa, of Angola, who wore a pink frock, aqua muffs and tiara, and carried pink roses. Joan Dobbs, in a gold colored gown, had aqua muffs and tiara and carried Talisman roses. Edward Felong, of Buffalo, was best man and ushers were Frank Felong, Jr., of Buffalo; Louis Eckland, Emporium, and Edwin Helmon.

Mrs. Anderson chose a dark blue ensemble for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. Felong wore black, each with a corsage of red roses. The reception was held from two until four o'clock at the American Legion Home, with 75 guests from Buffalo, Angola, Niagara Falls, Jamestown, N. Y., Erie, Oil City, Johnstown, Emporium, Warren and vicinity.

The bride's table was appointed with spring flowers and the three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with hearts and topped with bridal figures in miniature. Music for the reception was provided by the Vertz, Briggs and McCune Trio.

The couple left later for a Canadian honeymoon, the bride traveling in a gray gabardine suit with which she wore green accessories and a gardenia corsage. They will be at home after March 5 in Gold avenue, Buffalo, where Mr. Felong, veteran of three years' service in the navy, is employed at the Felong Machine Shop.

The bride was graduated from Warren High School and Albright Art School in Buffalo. She has been honored with pre-nuptial parties by Mrs. Harold Eckland and Mrs. Lucy Hunter, Mrs. Leonard Billman, Mrs. Russell Anderson, Marie Scott, Nellie Cairns and Margaret Miller.

Letters to the Editor

February 28, 1949.
Editor, Warren Times-Mirror,

Warren, Pennsylvania.

Dear Sir:

We were at first shocked, then horrified, to read of Senator Chapman's proposed Vivisection Bill. It certainly seems to me an UN-CHRISTIAN proposal.

We are fighting Vivisection in California, by advertising, by petitioning, and by making known some of its horrors.

Even though a person doesn't care for dogs or cats, I'm sure there is a certain spark of decency in all; enough to take a stand in the matter of experimenting on animals WITHOUT the use of anesthetic.

Sincerely,
Dee M. Monroe,

WOMAN IN CUSTODY

Mrs. Imogene Hawthorne, 21-year-old Heathville woman who last week fled the Jefferson County Home near Brookville, where she was being held pending transfer to the State Industrial Home for Women at Muncy, is back in custody again. She will be taken to Muncy to serve an indefinite term for larceny and burglary. According to State Police, the young fugitive from justice was taken back to Brookville by her husband, John Hawthorne, 52, and was turned over to County Home authorities Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Hawthorne reportedly made her escape after prying loose a window grating early last Wednesday morning. She spent the first night with relatives in Pansy and later returned to her husband, now a resident of Sparkle Mills.

New Forest Fighting Record Is Established During 1948

Harrisburg—The State Department of Forests and Waters has chalked up a new record in protection of forests throughout the Commonwealth from the ravages of fire.

The year 1948 topped a record of steady progress of over 33 years of forest fire prevention and control, according to a report released by department officials.

Only 842 fires occurred in Pennsylvania forests during 1948, burning 12,706 of the total 15,127,630 forested acres, public and private, owned.

The Department is charged with protection and the fighting of fires in all wooded areas in the Commonwealth, not just the forests owned by the state.

The figures represent the least number of fires on record for a one-year period, and an all-time low in acreage burned since the Department of Forests and Waters founded its protection work in the early months of this century.

"The forest fire seasons in Pennsylvania generally occur in the early spring months, from the middle of March to late in May," the Department's report said in a preface to the tables indicating the scope of the fire protection efforts of last year. "A second season occurs again in the autumn, from about the first of September to late December.

"However, with abnormal weather conditions," said the report, "forest fires have occurred in every month of the year."

The Department reported that during 1948 the same general statements held for the spring season as for the entire year.

The Department's statistics show that the least number of fires were reported, and about half the lowest acreage previously burned in any previous recorded spring season.

"During the 1948 spring season," said Department officials, "there were 655 fires which burned a total of 11,210 acres of timberland."

The fall situation, the period from September through December, was somewhat similar with 187 fires, and 1,496 acres burned.

"Since the beginning of organized fire protection by the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, these figures were bettered in the fall season only in 1926 with 126 fires and in 1919 with 122 fires.

"In area burned, this record was bettered only in 1942 with 1,361 acres burned and in 1926 when 989 acres were ravaged by fire."

Secretary of Forests and Waters M. F. Draemel, under whom the protection of forests from fire is administered by consistent vigilance on the part of those persons who are to handle the fire control work of the Commonwealth, and they can only be maintained by constantly reminding the people to be more careful than ever with fire in or near the woods."

World production of oil now has surpassed more than nine million barrels a day.

TIDIOUTE

Tidioute, Mar. 2—The annual World Day of Prayer observance for this community will be held Friday of this week in the Presbyterian church.

The annual father and son banquet held in the parlors of the Methodist church had an attendance of 110 men and boys. Following the dinner, Rev. Swanson led the singing of parodies on a number of songs. Carl Johnson acted as toastmaster and James Marshall and James Burdick gave talks to the fathers and sons. Rev. H. Stevenson, pastor of the Methodist church, gave a fine address, "Our Future Citizens."

The Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church met with Mrs. G. Norton, with 26 attending. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Prout, the president. Devotionals were led by Miss Helen Hewitt; Miss Laura Smutz reviewed the book, "Upon Our Own Door Step" by Frank S. Meade. Aprons were turned in. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Norton and committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lindquist, of Smethport, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Lindquist.

Many Unsold Potatoes In Piles Of State

Stocks of potatoes held by Pennsylvania growers and local dealers totaled more than 2,000,000 bushels during the month of January, State Department of Agriculture reports.

By February 1 there remained 6,430,000 bushels still for sale in Pennsylvania compared with 4,000,000 a year earlier.

The quantity of Pennsylvania potatoes sold and remaining for sale from the 1948 crop was estimated on February 1 at 15,577,000 bushels, over a million and a half greater than the amount sold in the 1947 crop, according to official State surveys.

Merchandise potato stocks held by Pennsylvania growers and local dealers on January 1 of this year totaled 6,430,000 bushels, approximately the same as on the same date in 1948.

Of the 37 late and intermediate potato states, disappearance during January was estimated at 28,000,000 bushels for the United States, including nearly 9,000,000 bushels purchased by the Federal Government under the price support program.

State Aiding Many Owners Of Woodlots

The State's Department of Forests and Waters reported "sound and substantial progress" in securing adoption of "good forest management practices" on the woodlands of farmers and other small owners in 23 counties in Pennsylvania.

The report was based on results achieved in counties where forest management projects for farm woodlots have been set up as an integral part of the department's co-operative program with the State Soil Conservation Commission, the U. S. Soil Conservation Commission and the local soil conservation districts.

The bureau's report showed that during 1948 only 16 farm-foresters were in the employ of the department, but that "they brought approved forest management practices on the holdings of more than 600 farmers and other owners of small forests."

The report added, however, that "this accomplishment is still lamentably small in comparison with the major forestry problem presented by the state's farm woodlands and small forests as a whole."

"The holdings on which forestry advice was afforded totaled almost 75,000 acres, the Bureau reported. From these, more than seven million board feet of sawtimber and other forest products—such as pulpwood, railroad ties, poles, posts, etc.—were cut and sold. These operations added approximately $250,000 to the gross income of the farm and other owners."

Counsel for the defendant, Ralph N. Decamp of Kane and Robert Apple of Smethport, had conferred with the district attorney's office on time for the plea with the Friday date set. Judge Charles G. Hubbard Wednesday stated that the time agreed upon by the prosecution and defense counsel was agreeable and that he expected the plea on that day.

Forestry Association Plans Drive to "Keep State Green"

Protecting fifteen million acres of forest land from fires is a major undertaking. The state has done a commendable job of protection to date. But from now on, it is more and more a job at which everyone must help.

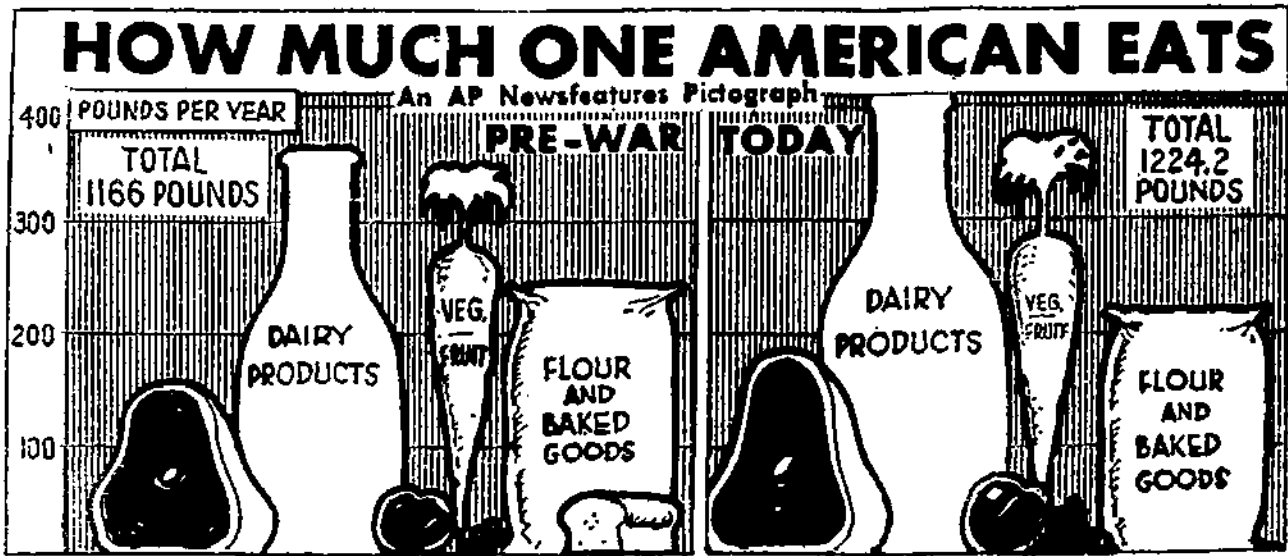

This is how Samuel A. Custer, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association sums up the job ahead for continuing to reduce the state's forest fire losses. Records show that nine out of 10 forest fires are caused by individual carelessness or ignorance. A Keep Pennsylvania Green program dedicated to acquaint every Pennsylvanian with the importance of keeping fires out of the forests will be launched March 11, at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association in the Penn-Harris Hotel, Harrisburg.

The morning session will begin at 10:45 a. m. and the afternoon session at 2 p. m. The public is invited to attend all sessions. All Pennsylvanians should give their full support to the program, Mr. Custer declared in announcing plans for the meeting.

Governor James H. Duff will open the Keep Green conference with an address in which he will point out the significant part forests have played in the development of the commonwealth. Governor Duff has repeatedly expressed vital concern over the perpetuation of Pennsylvania's forest resources.

Delegates from every county are expected to attend the meeting. These county delegates will appear either as interested private citizens or as representatives of organizations concerned with the reduction of forest fire damage in Pennsylvania.

H. B. Rowland, chief division of Forests and Waters, Harrisburg, will discuss the current status of protecting Pennsylvania's forest from fire at the Friday afternoon session. Announcement of appointments to the Keep Pennsylvania Green executive committee will be made at a banquet to be held that evening.

The Keep Pennsylvania Green program is a project of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association and is carried on in cooperation with the American Forest Products Industries, Incorporated.

Motorists Warned To Be On The Lookout For Children

Motorists were warned by the National Safety Council today to be in the lookout for children on the streets as milder weather and lengthening days keep more and more children out of doors past school hours.

Traffic accidents in recent years annually have killed more youngsters one to 14 years old than any disease, according to the Council. The coming of spring means that more of them will be out on bicycles, roller skates, wagons and scooters where they can get in the path of automobiles.

A Detroit survey showed that only 8 per cent of child traffic accidents occurred when children were going to or from school.

"Watch Out for Children" is the March slogan of "Operation Safety," the continuing traffic safety program sponsored nationally by the Council. The emphasis during this month will be on the responsibility of adults in protecting children from harm in traffic.

Most child traffic accidents could be avoided if motorists automatically regarded the sight of playing children as a danger sign and slowed to a speed which permits instant stopping, the Council said.

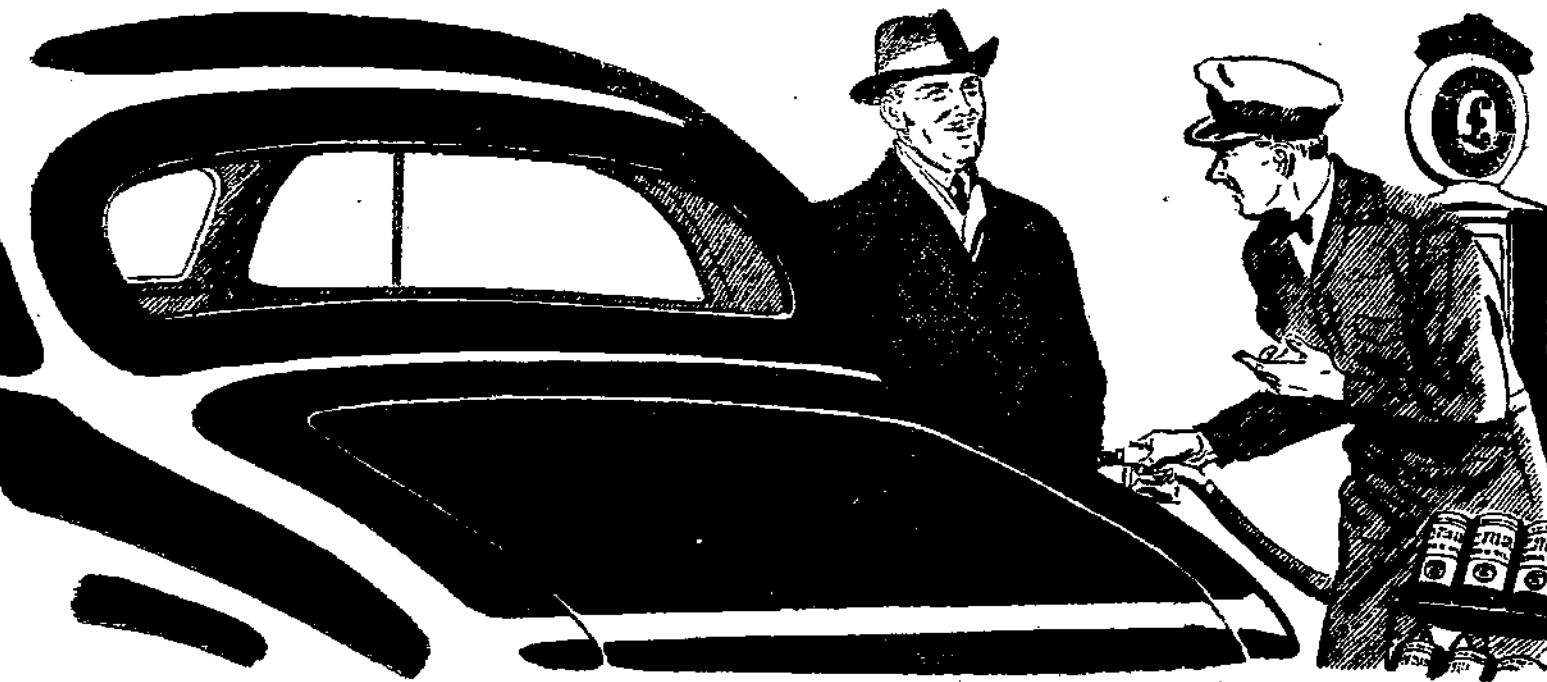

Despite excellent advances in the education of children through schools and official agencies, children are still children and have little regard for the consequences of any impulsive action. A motorist may find that he is held legally blameless if a child darts into his path, but the Council points out that every driver has a moral responsibility to do everything in his power to prevent the heavy toll of child accident victims.

EMPLOYMENT PEAK
The Speer Carbon Company which operated at Kane throughout the war and reached a peak employment of 75, has announced it will terminate its lease on its building there on June 1. The firm has been idle for the past two years but the lease was held in the hope that a new type of product might be found to be manufactured there. The decision to move was reached only last week and some machinery and electrical wiring has already been removed.

New Orleans Puts Away Clown Suits

New Orleans, March 2.—(P)—New Orleans put away its clown suit today and went to church. The city, which blends a strong love of fun-making with deep religious feeling, turned from the abandon of yesterday's mardi gras to the prayers and penance of Ash Wednesday. In ashes of burned palm leaves Roman Catholic priests traced crosses on foreheads that yesterday were gay with greasepaint, or hidden coyly behind masks. Protestant ministers gave Holy Communion and conducted special devotions for the first day of Lent. New Orleans was ready for the forty days of self-denial between now and Easter. Behind it was the gayest mardi gras spree since the European carnival customs were imported here, back in colonial times.

Short Form" Petitions In Rent Changes

An increasing number of small landlords are availing themselves of the use of the "short form" petition form, Frank S. Sherman, area rent director for Erie, Meadville - Titusville, Iron-Parrell, and Warren areas reported today.

In four such cases processed by office within the past week landlords have been granted abatements in rent ranging from 10 to 24% to take care of their increase in expenses for taxes, fuel, utilities and insurance. The highest percentage adjustment of the four, and the highest ever given by the Erie office, involved a North East landlord from Erie County who submitted bills and receipts showing an increase in taxes and fuel of $244.86 for 1948 as contrasted with the average of 1944 and 1945. The landlord who also resides in this large two unit structure received 24% increase for the one unit occupied by a tenant or an increase from $40 per month to $49.60 per month.

Anderson pointed out that "short form" hardship petition known as Form D-58A by the rent office and also carrying the nickname "Aunt Kate" petition is available to small landlords who rent out no more than four dwelling units. It covers four items only—taxes, fuel, utilities and insurance. Landlords who rent out more than four units may petition the office on the "long form" hardship petition, D-58, as may also the smaller landlord who wishes to have all items of expense considered.

The rent director reminded all landlords who claim to be operating at a loss that the rent office has an adjustment provision to allow rent increases if they are needed to bring the landlord out of the red. Such landlords should request copies of Landlord's Petition of Increase in Rent Due to Operating Loss, Form D-59.

Anderson reported that out of 125 petitions processed by his office during January 62 were granted. Twenty tenants received funds totalling $1,309.50.

Chicken And Egg Market Is Improving

Harrisburg—More favorable relationship between prices received for chickens and eggs and prices paid for feed is a major factor in a continuing strong demand for baby chicks that should increase poultry and egg production this year in Pennsylvania.

The State Department of Agriculture, as a result of Federal-State surveys, announced that commercial hatcheries in Pennsylvania produced 5,310,000 chicks during January, 49 per cent above production of 3,571,000 in January 1948, and 26 per cent more than the 1948-47 average for the month.

Revised figures on chick production for the year 1948 show a total of 55,800,000 baby chicks from Pennsylvania hatcheries. This compares with 60,620,000 for the year 1947. Production was slack the first half of last year, but showed a striking increase during the fall months when poultry feed prices declined.

Eggs in incubators on February 1 and bookings for March delivery indicate February and March hatchings will be considerably above the same months last year.

Pennsylvania prices for straight run chicks on February 1 averaged $17.00 per hundred for heavy breeds, $16.50 for light breeds and $17.00 for cross breeds; pullet chicks, $27.00 for heavy breeds, $34.00 for light breeds and $24.00 for cross breeds; cockerel chicks, $13.00 for heavy breeds, $3.70 for light breeds and $14.50 for cross breeds.

Hatchery output of chicks in the United States continued on a high level during January production nearly 81,000,000 being the highest of record for the month.

Cold Storage Foods Show A Decrease

Percentage decreases in all major food holdings in Pennsylvania cold storage houses during the month of January were led by shrinkage of more than half a million pounds in the reserve supply of creamery butter, the State Department of Agriculture reported today from Federal-State surveys.

Apple supplies were down to 373,000 bushels on February 1, lowest for that date since 1948.

Butter in storage the first of the year totaled more than a million pounds. Net withdrawals during the month amounted to 521,000 pounds, leaving 575,000 pounds in storage plants on the first of February.

Fluid cream was another commodity on which heavy withdrawals were made during January. Supplies the first of the year were 1,125,000 pounds. By February 1

Making Democracy Work

De Witt Wallace, left, editor of The Reader's Digest, hears George I. Hall, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, outline the Order's campaign to help the nation's schools teach democracy. Elks lodges are equipping their local schools with sets of "Our American Heritage", filmstrips that dramatize the birth and development of our democratic freedoms from Magna Charta to the present, bring the Freedom Train right into school rooms. The campaign is part of Elks' program to "make democracy work." The Digest produced "Our American Heritage" at request of the National Education Association and The American Heritage Foundation, sponsor of Freedom Train.

they had dropped to 692,000, a decline of 433,000 pounds.

Stocks of American cheese dropped to 1,772,000 pounds. 353,000 under the January 1 total.

Supplies of dressed poultry in Pennsylvania cold storage houses held fairly steady. The decline was 277,000 pounds, leaving a total of 4,526,000 pounds on hand the first of this month.

The only gain reported for the month was in shell eggs, the total of 7,000 cases being 3,000 more than on January 1, due in part to the record-breaking January production by Pennsylvania farm flocks. Frozen eggs in storage stood at 3,034,000 pounds, a drop of 559,000 from January 1.

Apples held in Pennsylvania 1948, totaled 701,000 bushels. This year they are 328,000 under that amount. On January 1, 1948, the total was 311,000 bushels.

More Cattle, Poultry And Hogs In State

More cattle, hogs, chickens and turkeys, but fewer horses, mules and sheep were inventoried on Pennsylvania farms this January 1 than a year earlier, the State Department of Agriculture announced today.

The aggregate farm inventory value of all livestock this year is a record $349,992,000, or 12 per cent above that for January 1, 1948, a Federal-State survey disclosed. With chickens and turkeys included, the total value reached an all-time record of $401,584,000, 13 per cent above a year previous.

All cattle on Pennsylvania farms the first of the year totaled 1,755,000 head worth $310,635,000, an increase of two per cent in numbers and $42,159,000 in value.

Pennsylvania hogs this January totaled 718,000 worth $25,345,000, an advance of one per cent in numbers and a decline of $1,815,000 in value. Sheep dropped from 230,000 to 228,000 but the value advanced from $2,987,000 to $3,420,000.

The steady decline in horse numbers that has been under way in Pennsylvania since 1932 continued last year, numbers dropping from 153,000 to 130,000. The 1949 value of $9,360,000 is $2,268,000 below the 1948 value. Mule numbers declined from 18,000 to 14,000 and the value dropped from $1,584,000 to $1,252,000.

Chickens on Pennsylvania farms total 24,100,000 worth a record $50,128,000. In numbers, chickens are up two per cent and the value compares with $42,183,000 a year earlier. Turkey numbers are up 10 per cent to 166,000. The value of $1,444,000 compares with $1,238,000 a year previous.

Manhattan Meets C. C. N. Y. Tonight

New York, March 3.—(AP)—The New York entry in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament probably will be determined tonight when City College meets Manhattan at Madison Square Garden.

The winner is figured to be a cinch to get a bid. CCNY (17-5) is the favorite. Manhattan (17-7) played in the N.A.I.B. tournament at Kansas City last year.

Half of the eight-team field already has been selected—Kentucky, St. Louis, Western Kentucky and Bradley. Figure to be in the running for the three remaining out-of-town berths are San Francisco (21-5) and Utah (23-6) and one team from among Loyola of Chicago (22-5), North Carolina State (22-8), Villanova (19-3) and Bowling Green (21-6).

The tournament starts March 12 with the finals March 18. St. Louis is the defending champion, but Kentucky, the No. 1 team nationally in The Associated Press poll, probably will be the favorite.

New Leader In All-Events At A.B.C.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 3.—(AP)—Stan Slomenski of Newark, N. J., the "arm" in bowling, makes his appearance in the 46th annual American Bowling Congress tournament tonight.

If the former Scranton, Pa., coal miner, now a produce dealer, performs as he has everywhere else in the last two years there'll be a few changes made among the leaders.

Tonight Slomenski, along with Nick Zazzelli, 65-year-old veteran and former New Jersey state match game king, Charles (Chick) Chiccarelli, Alex Murzinski and Elmer Fish, will bowl with the Miller High Life Beer team of New York.

The only change in the standings yesterday produced a new leader in the all-event when Norman (Niel) Freed, 35-year-old Allentown Bowler rolled into first place in the all-event with an 1887 total. He had 611 in his team event Tuesday, and 618 and 658 respectively in his doubles and singles yesterday.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

BASEBALL
Baltimore—Joe Dimaggio, the Yankees' $90,000-a-year outfielder, was told he could return to training camp after Dr. George Bennett, examined ailing right heel of player, said it was only a "flare-up."

Sarasota, Fla.—Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler said he would conduct a hearing on the dispute between the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns over Sportsman's Park, which Browns have asked to vacate. He also plans a hearing Friday on the Yankees-Indians dispute over the signing of two negro players—Art Wilson and Luis Marquez.

BASKETBALL
New York—Bradley and Western Kentucky were invited to national Invitation Tournament leaving four spots to fill. Kentucky and St. Louis are already invited.

Storrs, Conn.—Tony Lavelli of Yale scored 32 points against University of Connecticut and moved into a tie with George Mikan for fifth place among all-time high college scorers. Lavelli has 1,870 points.

HORSE RACING
Miami, Fla.—Fleming Candler (20.00) won the $20,000 added Black Helen handicap at Hialeah in 1:49, a new record for the mile and a furlong stake.

Arcadia, Calif.—Star Fiddle (6.00) won the Santa Clara handicap at Santa Anita.

MISCELLANEOUS
New York—Henry Laskau of New York set a world record for the mile walk indoors of 6:22.7. The previous mark, set by Laskau two weeks ago, was 6:24.6.

Princeton, N. J.—Joe Verdeur Olympic swim champion from LaSalle College, set new world-short-course 100-yard breaststroke record set by Don DeForest in 1947.

Pirates' Murtaugh and Rojek Are Moneyed Big Shots Now

NEW YORK.—(NEA)—One of the more pleasing stories of the spring has to do with Stan Rojek and Danny Murtaugh popping into the five-figure financial class for the first time in their careers. Rojek and Murtaugh reportedly will be paid $14,000 and $13,000, respectively, as the Pirates' second basing combination.

Among Bill Meyer's numerous problems at this time in 1948 was what the Pittsburgh club was going to use for double plays. Shortstop Rojek came with first baseman Ed Stevens from the Dodgers in exchange for a bundle of cash.

When the Brooks sold Eddie Stanky to the Braves shortly after the clubs opened training last spring, I found scouts of other organizations in the Florida Grapefruit League wondering why Billy Southworth didn't keep Murtaugh in the first place.

Second baseman Murtaugh, who has been tossed in by the Boston club in a transaction that also sent the versatile Johnny Hayes to the Buccaneers for outfielder Jim Russell and catcher Bill Salbeck.

MURTAUGH had the biggest hand in the development of the phenomenal Alvin Dark in Milwaukee, it was pointed out, and played a tremendous part in taking the Brewers to and successfully through the Little World Series.

Yet Meyer, who as manager of the Kansas City club, saw a great deal of Murtaugh in the American Association, opened the campaign with Marty Bassall, up from the Brooks' Fort Worth farm, at second base for the Corsairs.

Murtaugh, now 31, was rated nothing more than a utility man. This did not last long, however, for the season was hardly under way before Bassall was injured, and the veteran Murtaugh saw to it that the young Kansan never got back.

Murtaugh, the brave and fearless volunteer fireman of Chester, Pa., kicked around in the Cardinal chain for five years before serving a three-year sentence with the Phillies. He was coming on when he joined the Army to serve in both Europe and the Pacific.

Rojek, 29 this spring, was four years in the Brooklyn system before entering the Army for service in the Pacific. He simply could not get past the accomplished Peg Wee Reese as a Superstar.

But hooked up at Forbes Field, Rojek and Murtaugh were second in the National League in double plays, for which the pitchers gave them full credit. Each hit 290, and Murtaugh's 71 runs-batted-in were exceeded in the party by only Ralph Kiner's 125. Nobodies a year ago, Stan Rojek and Danny Murtaugh made the Pirates, are big shots now.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio, with his aching heel, headed back to the New York Yankees' training camp today after a quick visit to his Baltimore doctor. The verdict: He's okay. No medical attention required. The right heel, from which a bone spur was removed last fall, flared up after the Yankee clipper's first workout Tuesday. Taking no chances with their star, the Yankees sent him winging back to Dr. George Bennett.

Outfielder Pete Reiser, who moved from Brooklyn to the Boston Braves during the winter, provided a fancy juggling exhibition at Bradenton, Fla., where one of his drives carried 380 feet. Slugger Ralph Kiner was still among the missing in the Pittsburgh camp at San Bernardino, Calif., although he has signed his contract.

Les Fleming, Pittsburgh infielder, signed his contract. All of the Pirates now have agreed to terms. Eddie Stanky agreed to the Boston Braves' offer leaving the National League champions with four on the unsatisfied list. Andy Seminick, Philadelphia catcher, signed and cut the Phils' holdouts to two.

The Boston Red Sox had a look at Tex Hughson, Boo Ferriss and Mickey Harris, three question-mark pitchers, and they looked loose and limber. Sam Chapman reported to the Philadelphia Athletics without glasses and said the doctors told him his vision is perfect.

The World Champion Cleveland Indians began twice-a-day drills. Observers at the New York Giants' Phoenix camp got spring fever and started comparing Rojek-Pitcher Ted Heitschmidt with Bobby Feller.

TAYLOR LOSES A CLOSE ONE TO DYKES

Miami, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Chuck Taylor, 145, of Coalport, Pa., was the aggressor throughout but lost a ten round bout to Bobby Dykes, 147, at the Causeway Arena last night before an estimated 4,000 fans. Sharp counters by Dykes, of San Antonio, Texas, proved the telling factor. In the final and best round of the contest, Dykes caught Taylor coming in with a short right to the jaw and drove him to one knee. The Coalport fighter was back on his feet immediately.

A ketchup, hitched to a paper sled, was able to pull a load consisting of 12 sheets of paper, two steel pens, a large screw, a two-ounce stone, and three and one-half lead pencils, but it moistened its feet in its mouth to get better traction.

At present, the most important oil region in the Middle East lies in a great geologic trough extending down through Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, and the sheikdoms of Kuwait, Bahrain, and Qatar.

TIPS FROM THE GAME PROTECTOR

In the interest of its stepped-up law enforcement program, the Game Commission recently decided to increase its force of deputies. This project got off to an auspicious start February 15 when John M. Phillips, "Grand Old Man of Conservation", assumed the role of honorary deputy game protector—significantly the first new officer commissioned on his 88th birthday. Ross L. Leffler, president of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, administered the oath of office and presented the badge and commission certificate. The ceremony took place in the outstanding deputy's Carrick home in the presence of members of his family, notables, sports leaders, and friends. Phillips was a member of the Pennsylvania Game Commission during the early years of its struggle to bring the deer and other decimated game species back to this shot-out state.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

BE SLOW IN PLAYING TO THE FIRST TRICK

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

America's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

As youngsters we were taught to count 10 before saying something we might be sorry for. Here is a good rule for every bridge player to adopt—before playing to the first trick, stop at least long enough to count 10.

I have seen experts take 20 minutes for thought before playing to the first trick in an important tournament match, yet the new-comer often calls out immediately the card to be played from dummy to the first trick.

When the dummy goes down, review the bidding in your mind. It will help you to place missing high cards. Then start to count your tricks. You may find that with a contract for 10 tricks, you can count only nine. Then you must look for a way to develop the 10th trick.

He unselfishly spent valuable time and considerable money in leading the first license fee battle, in bringing about the establishment of deer refuges and in promoting other new departures that were in a large way responsible for returning the Keystone State to its rightful leadership among wildlife states. His interest and his efforts in all phases of conservation have been keen and continuous for more than half a century. His pleasure at receiving the number one commission to the new fawn will be matched by the vigor with which he will promote observance of Pennsylvania's game laws and hunting regulations, so generally flouted in recent years.

Conservation enthusiasts over the commonwealth could well follow his example, should congratulate themselves for having profited particularly in the wildlife field, through the courageous, impartial and far-sighted effort of Deputy Phillips, "Grand old man of Conservation."
